MESSAGE

I am happy to learn that the Bureau of Police Research & Development (BPR&D) is celebrating its Golden Jubilee Anniversary on the 28th August 2020, and publishing a 'Souvenir', highlighting its accomplishments over the last 50 years.

2. Police operates in a kinetic environment where social, political, technological and many other societal factors are under constant change. They all profoundly impact working of the police. Further, ever increasing access to technology, mobility, means of communication and use of cyber space etc., to the criminals have compounded the complexities. Police has not only to cope with these emerging challenges but on a continuing basis re-invent itself and remain a step ahead of their adversaries. This is a highly challenging responsibility and has a seminal role in maintenance of peace, law and order and internal security of a country.

3. I am delighted to observe that for five long decades, the BPR&D has performed this role with distinction. It has transformed itself over the years to promote excellence in functioning of the Indian Police. It has undertaken research, evolved training methodologies, adopted technologies, developed partnerships for capacity building and evolved best practices for effective policing. However, much more remains to be done.

4. I congratulate the BPR&D leadership and all its officers on this occasion and compliment them for their professionalism and dedicated efforts. I trust that the organisation will continue to serve the country with distinction in times ahead. On this occasion, I send my best wishes and greetings to all members of the organization.

2. मैं महिला सशक्तिकरण के लिए क्षमता निर्माण, महिलाओं को न्याय, बाल अधिकार संरक्षण, महिलाओं और बच्चों के विरुद्ध अपराध, साइबर फॉरेंसिक, कट्टरवाद को समाप्त करने के प्रयासों, अनुसंधान कार्यों और सुधारात्मक प्रशासन के क्षेत्र में BPR&D द्वारा किए गए योगदान की हृदय से सराहना करता हूँ। ब्यूरो के तहत सी.ए.पी.टी., भोपाल और सी.डी.टी.आई. पुलिस और जेल अधिकारियों के प्रशिक्षण के क्षेत्र में उल्लेखनीय सेवा देते आ रहे हैं।

MESSAGE – BPR&D GOLDEN JUBILEE CELEBRATIONS

State of law enforcement and wellbeing of a community are organically linked and co-dependent. In a healthy and growing society, a parallel evolution of the police force is indispensable. BPR&D has been diligently carrying out this task for half a century. Publishing a 'Souvenir', documenting all the hard work and milestones achieved, is a perfect way of commemorating 50 golden years of innovation, research and dedication.

It is indeed satisfying to note that the Bureau has been consistent in its efforts to modernize policing in India. It must be emphasised that BPR&D has not limited itself to enhancing efficiency only but has covered other equally important dimensions such as timely training interventions, aiding in instituting community policing programs, promoting gender justice and calling attention to the larger philosophy of policing. This approach has ensured that every input and suggestion is based on a fundamental understanding of policing and community.

I convey my wishes to all the officers and staff of BPR&D and to the entire team at the subsidiary units at CAPT Bhopal, and the CDTIs at Kolkotta, Chandigarh, Hyderabad, Jaipur and Ghaziabad.

I wish the Team BPR&D many more years of success in serving the nation.

Message

I am delighted to know that the BPR&D is celebrating its Golden Jubilee Anniversary on 28th August, 2020, and bringing out a "Souvenir" as a part of Golden Jubilee Celebration, capturing all its achievements over the last 50 years.

2. BPR&D has strengthened the Indian Police through all its capacity building initiative, research projects, modernization efforts and through National Police Mission and flagship publications like Indian Police Journal, Data on Police Organization (DoPO) in India, to quote a few.

3. In a proxy war situation, the technically linked global terrorism has necessitated highly specialized police responses, specially where the virtual realities have taken over actual realities and crime has become boundariless. In the new zone of cyber terrorism, it requires Policing to be well-equipped and trained to face the challenges of the virtual world.

4. I am sure BPR&D will take note of it and will create a roadmap for the Indian Police Forces to prepare themselves for new challenges.

5. I appreciate the effort of the BPR&D in preparing the Police Forces towards desired responsibilities in dealing with the emerging challenges. On the occasion of their 50th Year Anniversary, I wish DG, BPR&D and all the Officers and staff all the very best.

MESSAGE

It has been a privilege serving the Bureau of Police Research & Development (BPR&D) during its Golden Jubilee Year. At the very outset, I would like to acknowledge the contribution of Dr. Anandswarup Gupta, who founded this great organisation, and of all other former Directors General of the Bureau, who nurtured it. The journey of the BPR&D, in the last five decades, has been spectacular and it has played a vital role in shaping the very ethos of the Indian Police, so that it gelled with the democratic values of the country while confronting daunting challenges. It has equipped the police forces through its training interventions and capacity building programmes, through the findings in different research and NPM projects as well as various Modernisation initiatives to keep the police forces in step with the latest changes. BPR&D publications, like the Indian Police Journal, Police Vigyan, Drill Manual, Model Prison Manual, Model Police Manual, Data on Police Organizations, Compendium of Equipment, Directory of Indian Police Training Institutions (DIPTI), to mention a few, are standard reference books for the police organizations of States and UTs besides the CAPFs and CPOs as well as the Correctional Administration Department.

2. The BPR&D provides a platform for deliberating over contemporary issues by hosting conferences like the All India Police Science Congress, National Conference of Heads of Police Training Institutions, Heads of Prisons and Correctional Services, Young SPs Conference, National Conference of Women in Police (NCWP), All India Prison Duty Meet, etc.

3. The Bureau has grown over the years in size and reach. Three Central Detective Training Schools (CDTS) were inherited from the IB, at Kolkata, Hyderabad and Chandigarh. New Schools at Ghaziabad and Jaipur took their number to five. Since 2017, each of these has been known as Central Detective Training Institute (CDTI) and has developed into a Centre of Excellence. The Central Academy for Police Training (CAPT), spread over 400 acres, at Bhopal, has been a major addition.

4. BPR&D has kept up its commitment, despite COVID – 19, and adapted to the changed circumstances by launching webinars and online courses, run from its Headquarters as well as the outlying units. The Bureau has set up a Space Technology Application Centre (STAC), where, in collaboration with the Advanced Data Processing Research Institute (ADRIN), courses for State/UT Police besides the Central Police Organisations and CAPFs are being held.

5. For promoting original writing in Hindi on police-related subjects, the Bureau started the Pt. Govind Vallabh Pant Puraskar, in the year 1982. So far, 148 writers have been awarded the Puraskar and 39 award-winning books have been published.

6. The setting up of the National Cyber Crime Innovation and Research Centre at the BPR&D Hqrs. and its branch, the National Cyber Research, Innovation and Capacity Building Centre, at the CDTI, Hyderabad, under the Indian Cyber Crime Coordination Centre (I4C) of the MHA, has been a major technological leap in the cyber research and training capabilities of the BPR&D. Developing a new complex for CDTI Chandigarh, at Mohali, and expansion of the BPR&D infrastructure at Mahipalpur, New Delhi, to accommodate advanced centres of learning, are on the cards.

7. To conclude, I wish to quote the Hon'ble Union Home Minister, Shri Amit Shah, who wrote on the 49th Foundation Day of the BPR&D, while ushering the Bureau into its 50th year of existence – “बी.पी.आर. एण्ड डी. के बगैर अच्छे पुलिसिंग की कल्पना नहीं हो सकती”.

8. It is time to rededicate ourselves to our goal : Promoting Good Practices and Standards.

The contribution of BPR&D in the last 50 years in bringing and prompting Good Practices and Standards in Indian Police is overwhelmingly praiseworthy. With the limited resources available in BPR&D, the organization, for the last 50 years, has given a lot of "Positives" to the Indian Police in the form of SOPs, thematic papers, ideas, technological solutions, etc. In fact, one of the important SOPs on 'Coastal Security', published by the BPR&D, has been mostly drafted by me under the guidance of Dr. Satpal Singh IPS, the then IGP in Maharashtra Police and subsequently the Commissioner of Police, Mumbai (presently the Hon'ble Member of Parliament) & being followed by all coastal states.

02. The publications of BPR&D on various policing subjects, the Indian Police Journal, etc. have been appreciated by one & all in the field of Policing all over the world. In fact, during my travels abroad, in connection with training programmes, BPR&D publications have been quoted even by foreign trainers. BPR&D is not only a Research & Development organization but also acts as a Think-Tank of the entire Indian Police.

03. It is felt that it should be strengthened in terms of manpower, number of divisions, technology, research facilities, etc. to cope up the time.

04. I wish BPR&D all my best wishes on its 50th year.

MESSAGE

It is a matter of great honour and privilege for me to be working in BPR&D, particularly at a time when it is celebrating its Golden Jubilee. Tasked with the mandate of identifying the needs, problems & challenges of law enforcement as faced by the policemen across the country, and providing them pragmatic solutions, BPR&D has been rendering yeoman service to this great nation and its citizens.

Over the last five decades, the Research Division of BPR&D has completed 286 projects which include 205 Research Studies and 81 Doctoral theses. The findings and recommendations of these projects have made a major contribution in improving the systems and procedures in policing, both at the policy and cutting edge levels. These include suggesting measures on an entire gamut of issues ranging from victim compensation to witness protection to investigation of crime against women, to handling of juvenile delinquency, etc.

The Training Division of BPR&D has likewise made tremendous contribution towards capacity building of police as well as prison officials in this country. Through the aegis of CAPT Bhopal and five CDTIs, almost 58,000 police and prison officers have undergone 3131 courses on a large number of subjects.

The National Police Mission was anchored in BPR&D in 2008 with the vision 'to transform the police forces in this country as effective instruments for maintenance of internal security and face the challenges of next century'. In just over a decade, the National Police Mission has completed 40 projects through its 7 Micro Missions, dealing with a wide range of topics which include Community Policing, fighting Left Wing Extremism, technology for prevention of crime against women, welfare of police personnel, transparent recruitment procedures, automated Traffic Monitoring System, National Road Safety Plan, etc.

The Modernization Division of BPR&D which is also just over a decade old, has played a significant role in propelling Indian Police in the direction of best systems, procedures, and most importantly in leveraging technology. The Modernization Division has been instrumental in formulating uniform police standards of police buildings, QRs and TDs for BR Jackets and helmets, QRs and TDs for Anti-Drone equipment and has also prepared Operational Scaling Policy for NSG and Arming policy for CAPFs. The establishment of National Cyber Research Innovation and Capacity Building (NCRI and CB) Lab at CDTI Hyderabad for combating cyber crime and state of the art Space Technology Application Centre (STAC) at BPR&D Hqrs for utilizing the expertise of ISRO for law enforcement, are its latest achievements.

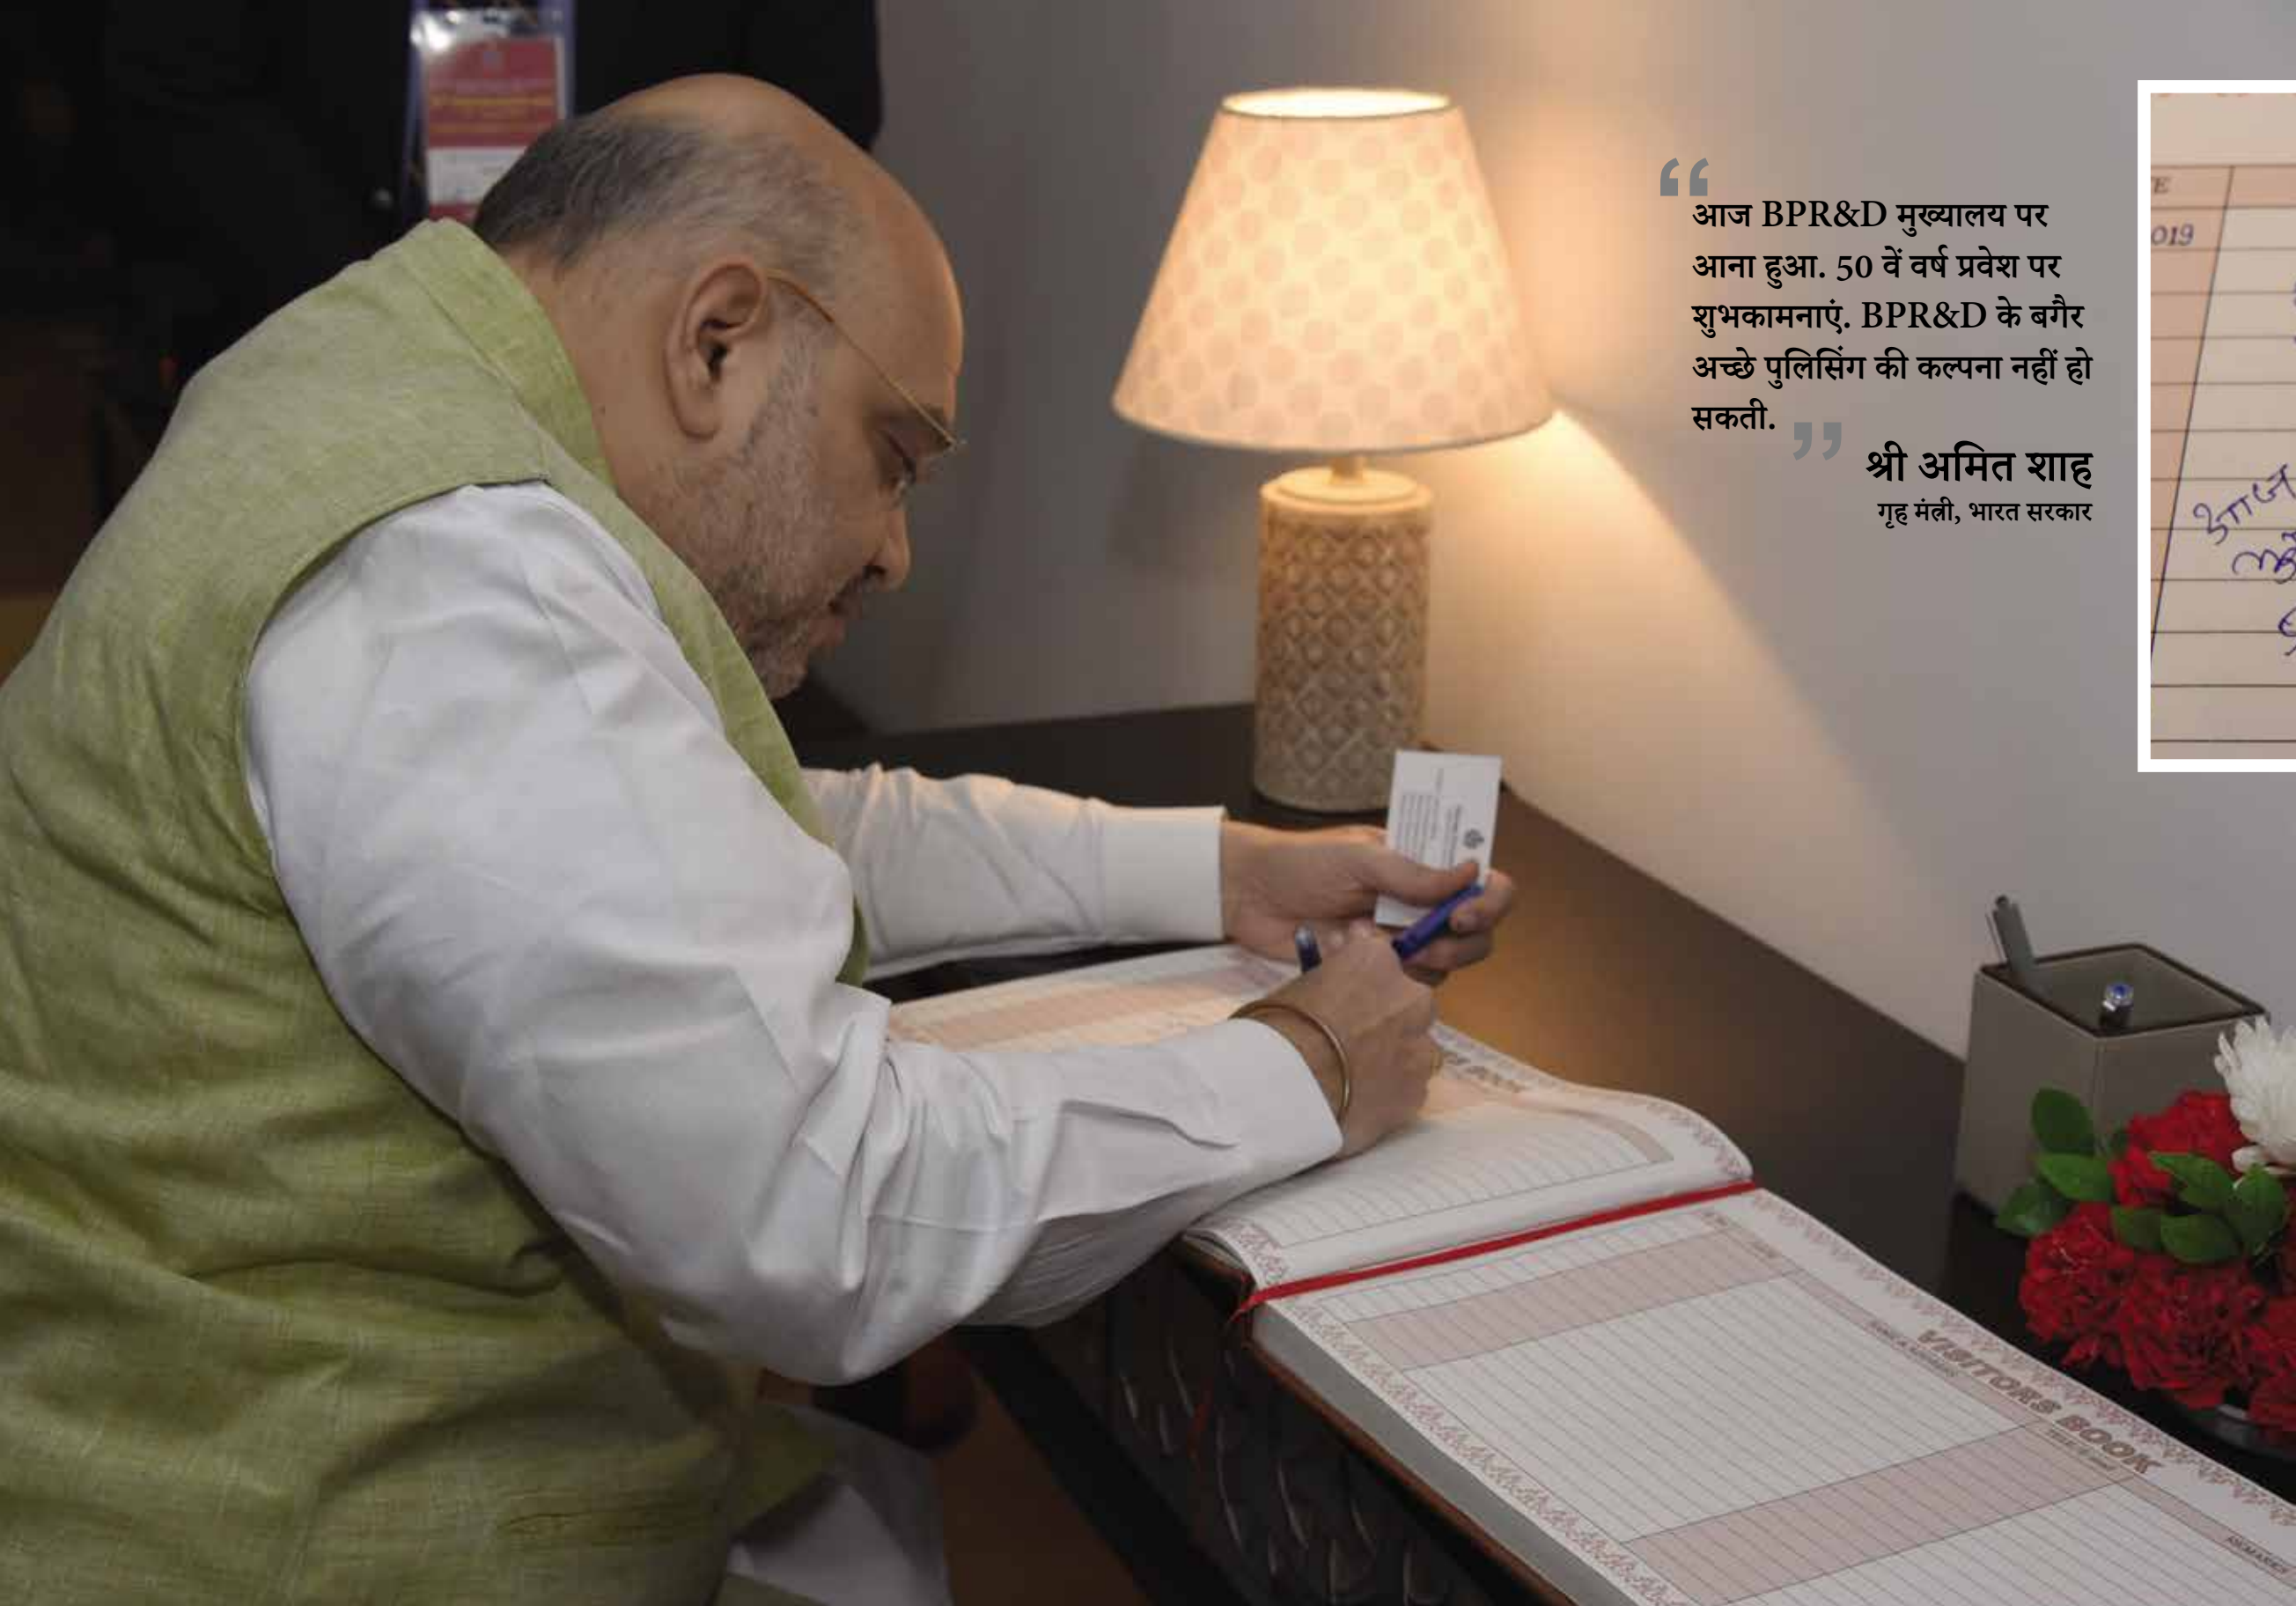

The Special Police Division of BPR&D has been instrumental in chronicling the important achievements and milestones of policing in India through a series of publications. These include its flagship Indian Police Journal which carries articles on matters of professional interests, DIPTI (which is a directory of Indian Training Institutions) and its quarterly News Bulletin.

I am supremely confident that given its rich historical legacy, BPR&D will continue to make meaningful contribution towards fulfilling the vision of the Hon'ble Prime Minister of India, Sh. Narendra Modi Ji of having SMART POLICING in this nation.

TRAINING DIVISION

The Training Division traces its origins to the very founding of the BPR&D. Three years after the Bureau came into being, the Training Division was set up in September, 1973, with a view to aiding and advising States and UTs on aspects relating to training of police officers.

MANDATE

The Training Division remains the operational arm of the BPR&D, formulating policies on training of police personnel of all genres, conducting, sponsoring and coordinating training activities, identifying training needs, designing training strategies, in keeping with emerging needs and supervising the functioning of the Subsidiary Units of the Bureau, including the 5 CDTIs and the CAPT, Bhopal.

Combining traditional wisdom with modern learning, the Training Division has helped the BPR&D occupy commanding heights of police training in India. What makes the Training Division stand out as an entity, in the midst of multiple training facilities spread across the country, has been its ability to cater equally to Inspector Generals of Police as well as to the Head Constables, manning beat systems on the roads. The Training Division caters equally to CAPFs and CPOs, as it does to the civil police in States and UTs, identifying with the common objective of a more knowledgeable and better sensitized police force.

CAPACITY BUILDING

The Training Division has facilitated capacity building across police entities, both at the Centre as well as in the States and the UTs. In the last 5 years alone, it has helped organize training of nearly 55,000 police officers. Furthermore, nearly 3,000 police officers from friendly countries, including Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Bhutan, Maldives, Nepal and Myanmar, have been trained.

The Training Division has brought multiple capacity building platforms, including Vertical Interaction Courses and Management Development Programmes at prestigious institutions within easy reach of police officers. Training themes at these events have ranged from issues pertaining to national security and artificial intelligence to communication strategies for leaders, social media analytics and the art of negotiating under stress.

The Division has commenced the publication of a useful compilation styled 'DIPTI'. An exhaustive volume, DIPTI contains a list of all the Police Training Institutions in the country for easy reference. Furthermore, in its capacity as the coordinating body, the Training Division hosts annual/biennial conferences of significance, including the National Symposium of Heads of Police Training Institutions and the National Conference of Heads of Investigating Agencies. Additionally, the Division performs several tasks behind the scenes including assisting the MHA in policy formulation, drafting SOPs and preparing rules pertaining to award of Police Medals. The Division is also charged with assessing Policing Training Institutions and framing guidelines for their optimal utilization.

Hon'ble Home Minister presenting Medal for Excellence in Police Training

A landmark event, recently organized by the Training Division during the raging pandemic, was a series of webinars. The webinars styled as the 'Lockdown Series', showcased professional presentations by domain experts on issues relating to Soft Skills, Community Policing, Role of Intelligence and Safety of Women and Children, under the broad head of Road to Effective Policing. The Webinars evoked considerable enthusiasm among the participants with over 5,000 nodes, each with multiple participants, active and live during the sessions.

To mark the 50th year of BPR&D's founding, the Training Division is commencing a 'Golden Jubilee National Perspective Management Course' for senior police officers of States and Central Organizations. The course is designed to expose the participants to a wide variety of professional concerns relating to policing, the security context, de-radicalization, cyber-crime, investigation/prosecution issues and disaster management.

A flagship training initiative of the Division relates to the Developing Specialist Investigators (DSI) Plan Scheme, that provides access of mid – level officers to cutting edge investigation techniques. More than 16,000 police personnel have already been trained in the DSI scheme, out of which 158 achievers were sent abroad for advanced training in countries such as France, Canada and Singapore. The Anti-Terrorism Assistance Courses administered by the Government of United States have engaged with issues relating to counter terrorism. Since the inception in March, 1995, a total of 3429 officers have been trained, so far under the ATA programme.

Raising the bar several notches higher, the Training Division is now poised to play a significant role in augmenting bilateral and multilateral relations with friendly countries both in the neighborhood and SAARC, as well as the wider world outside, including African, American, South Asian, and European countries through workshops and training interventions. That apart, several efforts are underway to introduce tailor – made courses on policing and security for friendly countries with a view to leaving the footprints of Indian initiatives on foreign shores. The reach of BPR&D is found to extend tremendously as a result of its MoU with the MEA to further the Indian Technical and Economic Cooperation (ITEC) with almost 160 countries.

With a repertoire full of multiple initiatives, the Training Division is well placed to fulfil its part of the role in BPR&D's tryst with policing destiny, both, within the country and outside.

NATIONAL POLICE MISSION (NPM) DIVISION

The genesis of the National Police Mission can be traced back to the announcement made by none other than the Prime Minister of India to set up a Police Mission, in his address at the DGSP/IGSP Conference on October 06, 2005. The Hon'ble Prime Minister declared, "The Mission will seek to transform the police forces in the country into effective instruments for maintenance of internal security and facing the challenges of the next century, by equipping them with the necessary material, intellectual and organizational resources."

called for the meeting of the Executive Committee (EC) of the National Police Mission wherein content and composition of 'Micro Missions' were discussed. A draft proposal for setting up of the Mission Directorate of the NPM in the Bureau of Police Research & Development was prepared and sent to all concerned on February 22, 2008. The Mission Directorate was to be an officer-oriented body, in order to coordinate the activities of the Micro Missions and translate their action plan into projects. The first meeting of the Micro Missions was held on August 19, 2008, under the Chairmanship of the Home Secretary.

STEP-BY-STEP PROGRESSION

The National Security Adviser (NSA), the Director of Intelligence Bureau (DIB), and the Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) got involved in the process, and, consequently, a draft note was prepared during December, 2005. In the month of August, 2006, the MHA finalized a Concept Paper, keeping in view the advice given by the NSA. It was finally decided that the Mission shall consist of a two-tier body. At the apex would be the Steering Group (SG), which will be headed by the Union Home Minister. At the second tier, it was decided to have an Executive Committee (EC), which would pursue the policy and milestones set by the Steering Group for time-bound implementation. The first joint meeting of the ESG and EC was held under the Union Home Minister's Chairmanship on November 03, 2006.

On September 28, 2007, the Home Secretary

During the deliberations of the EC on September 28, 2007, the Home Secretary announced that the Mission Directorate be anchored in the BPR&D, and, for this purpose, the BPR&D shall need to be strengthened. Consequently, the Mission Directorate of the NPM was anchored in the BPR&D in the year 2008 itself, and the NPM Division was sanctioned with the strength 25 personnel under the supervision of an Addl. Director General and an Inspector General, as per MHA Order No II-27012/44/2008-PF.I, dated June 25, 2009.

CDTI HYDERABAD

(Centre of Excellence for Police Information Technology & Cyber Crime)

The Central Detective Training Institute (CDTI), Hyderabad, commenced operations on 28th September, 1964. After functioning as part of the Intelligence Bureau for nearly a decade, CDTI Hyderabad was transferred to the Bureau of Police Research & Development in 1973. True to its tag line emphasizing 'Ritena Satyam Vindema', or, 'Let us reach truth by honest means', the CDTI, since its inception, has continued to focus on the use of scientific tools to unravel complicated investigations.

In the initial days, CDTI, Hyderabad started off with just two courses, of 3 months duration each, gradually expanding its repertoire to cater to the needs of all its client states, including Andhra Pradesh, Telangana, Karnataka, Maharashtra, Gujarat, Delhi, Tamil Nadu, Kerala, Puducherry and Lakshadweep, as well as a host of other stakeholders like the CRPF, BSF, CISF, SSB, RPF, NCB, Army, Navy and the Indian Air Force. Officers from the Royal Bhutan Police, Mauritius, Sri Lanka, Maldives, Myanmar & the Malawi National Intelligence Bureau have also trained at CDTI, Hyderabad. Moreover, 5 ATA Courses have been organized at the CDTI, where Instructors from USA trained Indian police officers on aspects relating to counterterrorism. In all, 17,030 officers have been imparted training at CDTI, Hyderabad since its inception. Of late, the Institute has started training Judicial Officers, Prosecutors and Prison Officers as well.

During the last year (2019-2020), the CDTI organized 42 courses in which 1063 Officers (889 Male and 179 Female) were trained. Under the "Cyber Crime Prevention against Women & Children" (CCPWC) Scheme of MHA, 21 courses to enhance the capacity building of Police, Prosecutors and Judicial Officers in the field of cyber domain were conducted in which 328 Police Personnel and 189 Judicial Officers/Prosecutors were trained. As a new initiative, the CDTI organized a course on 'Handling CCTV footages and DVR Forensics' during the period. Courses on Work Life Balance, Leadership, Professional Skills, and Workshops on Stress Management & Behavioural Skills (Ethics, Leadership, Soft Skills, etc.) were conducted as well. As part of social responsibility endeavours, CDTI, Hyderabad organized a well attended 'Cyber Crime Awareness Programme for School Children'. Requests for visit to the CDTI have been encouraged and students as well as serving personnel of Forensic Science and Criminology, Criminal Justice, the Indian Air Force and the Karnataka Police, came over as part of their Study cum Training Tour.

The inauguration of the 'National Cyber Research, Innovation & Capacity Building Centre' by the Hon'ble Minister of State for Home, Shri G. Kishan Reddy on 24-02-2020 under the I4C Scheme of MHA, remained for CDTI, Hyderabad, the crowning glory of the current year's achievements.

CDTI KOLKATA

(Centre of Excellence for Community Policing, Crime against Women, Children & vulnerable sections, Human Trafficking & Illegal Migration)

The Central Detective Training School, Kolkata, as the CDTI was then known, was established in 1956 in the spirit of the Detective Training School of Scotland Yard, England. For nearly two decades, it functioned under the aegis of the Intelligence Bureau before being brought to operate under the Bureau of Police Research and Development. An aspirational effort, the Detective School was a pioneering endeavour, the first of the CDTIs ever established. In terms of sheer antiquity, it predates even the parent body, the BPR&D, which came into being much later in 1970. On the 24th October 2017, the Central Detective Training School dropped its last name to become the Central Detective Training Institute, or the CDTI, Kolkata.

Since inception, the CDTI, Kolkata has remained committed to providing its circle of client states/entities, including West Bengal, Kolkata Police, Orissa, Assam, Arunachal Pradesh, Manipur, Mizoram, Nagaland, Tripura, Sikkim, Meghalaya and Andaman & Nicobar Islands, the highest standards of training in investigative skills, with a focus on its areas of deemed excellence, such as Community Policing, Crime against Women & Children, Human Trafficking & Illegal Migration. Police officers from other States and the CAPFs have undertaken courses here, as have police officers from friendly countries, including Bhutan, Maldives, Nepal, Sri Lanka, Singapore, Kenya, Iran and Nigeria.

While the methodology of training may have undergone a sea change with the introduction of sophisticated gadgets and domain experts over the years, the commitment of the institute to its trainees, has remained unhindered. The publication of a compendium on Trial Court Judgments on crime against women, including rape, the POCSO Act, dowry death etc and the introduction of the analysis of a trial court judgment in each course by individual participants has greatly impacted positive outcomes at training events.

The establishment of Training Management Information System, the setting up of e-office for communication and cyber lab for forensics are indicators of the progress made. The course on the 'Use of Technology in Prison Administrations' by the CDTI, flagging the need for involving prison officers to improve upon security systems at Correctional Centres, has been much appreciated.

CDTI Kolkata is pandemic-ready with the introduction of e-Courses on a wide variety of subjects which have the potential of enhancing its outreach manifold. A bridge between old wisdom, given its antiquity, and the emphasis on new learnings, CDTI Kolkata, has constantly striven to adopt, imbibe and bring to bear new innovations and developments in forensics to each of its investigative training programs.
